

There's more to the Florida Keys than meets the eye. Away from the action of Duval Street, the boaters and the visitors, a more peaceful, historic and unique side of the Florida Keys awaits....

The Florida Keys & Key West

KEYS & KEY WEST

Tucked off U.S. 1 at Burton Road, MM 92.5 oceanside in Key Largo, Harry Harris Park has a beach, picnic grounds, playground and ball field. At MM 85 bayside in Islamorada, travelers can view the inside of a fossilized coral reef at the 32-acre Windley Key Quarry Fossil Reef State Geologic Site.

Venturing into the Middle Keys, Conch Key at MM 63 bayside, is a historic fishing village reminiscent of the early Florida Keys. Small cottages that date back to 1925 are home to commercial trap and line fishermen who work from their backyards.

Sombrero Beach in Marathon, MM 50 oceanside at Sombrero Beach Boulevard, provides a sandy oasis in the Middle Keys.

A portion of the Old Bahia Honda Bridge, a historic part of the 524-acre Bahia Honda State Park between MM 36 and MM 37, is open to pedestrians visiting the park and provides a panoramic view.

Lower Keys visitors also can visit the former Overseas Railway borrow pit now known as the Blue Hole. Located just off Big Pine's Key Deer Boulevard at MM 30.5 bayside, the Blue Hole features a layer of fresh water floating over salt water, and attracts Key deer and provides a home to alligators, turtles, birds and numerous fish.

Hidden from view at the commercial gateway to Key West is the 11-acre Botanical Garden on Stock Island. Situated on Botanical Garden Lane just off College Road at MM 5 bayside, the garden draws bird and butterfly watchers and features abundant exotic and native plants, walking trails, a gazebo, benches and a picnic table.

In Key West, Nancy's Secret Garden, created by Nancy Forrester, has been described as a living work of art. Finding this open-to-the-public place is tricky - the entrance is on Free School Lane, off the 500 block of Simonton Street between Fleming and Southard streets.

The six-acre Indigenous Park, located just past the intersection of Key West's White Street and Atlantic Boulevard, serves as a haven for migrating birds. Attractions here include a bird sanctuary and wildlife refuge. A native hardwood hammock contains a variety of indigenous plants. Bocci ball courts also are on premises.

Simonton Court Historic Inn and Cottages, Key West...This once cigar factory where highly-skilled laborers hand-rolled some of the worlds most famous cigars, has been impressively transformed into a serene oasis that encourages a sense of calm. Garden pathways are a highlight with flowering bougainvillea and lush greenery displayed prominently among towering palms that provide a cool respite on a hot Key West day.

Unique to Simonton Court are the luxurious accommodation choices guests are offered. Sumptuous linens and thoughtful amenities are found adorned within the historic inn itself. For those who prefer an intimacy of a private cottage, guests are assured of a discreet and well-appointed accommodation.

Outdoors, guests can relax alongside one of the inn's four pool areas or take advantage of the full concierge services that are offered. 800-944-2687 | 305-294-6386 | www.simontoncourt.com
