Another reason to stay in Tampa Bay...

Explore over 450 hands-on exhibits in the largest science center in the southeastern United States at the Museum of Science & Industry (MOSI) in Tampa. The museum offers a comprehensive overview of science and technology through a 400,000-square-foot campus of interpretive exhibits and visual displays on natural disasters, health and wellness, physics, astronomy and more! Conveniently located across from the University of South Florida and within miles from Interstate 75 and 275, MOSI makes a great daytime excursion for children and adults. For the first time in Florida, MOSI proudly debuts Gunther von Hagens' BODY WORLDS & The Story of the Heart an exhibition offering insights on the human body, and looks closely at the heart-revealing how this four-chambered muscle nourishes, regulates and sustains life.

MOSI is an education resource dedicated to making a difference in people's lives by making science real for all ages and backgrounds. There is no better place to experience what it's like to pedal a bicycle on a 1-inch cable suspended 30 feet above the ground, lie on a Bed-of-Nails in Kids In Charge! At the Children's Science Center, learn the science behind natural disasters inside Disasterville and create an entire weather forecast in a mock news room in Bay News 9 WeatherQuest, or learn about health, wellness and prevention at each developmental life stage inside MOSI's newest permanent exhibition, The Amazing You. With all this and more, there is always something new for you to discover during a visit to Tampa's Museum of Science & Industry! *
