Explore the great Outdoors

Located at the western edge of the Everglades, Rookery Bay National Estuarine Research Reserve and the Ten Thousand Islands ecosystem is a prime example of a nearly pristine subtropical mangrove forested estuary. Visitors to the reserve can explore the environmental learning center, a two-storey exhibit hall that highlights southwest Florida's coastal habitats, unique plant and animal history and a 2,300-gallon aquarium with immersion bubble.

The estuary hosts a number of family friendly events including the Southwest Florida Birding Festival, National Estuary Day in September, and Southwest Florida History and Archeology Festival in March.

Family Fun!

The first hands-on science center in Volusia County is scheduled to debut on November 21, 2008. The Charles and Linda William's Children's Museum, located within the Museum of Arts and Sciences, was developed to stimulate curiosity, creativity and learning. "MOAS Executive Director Wayne David Atherholt notes, "We are proud to host the only hands-on science center in Volusia County which will also serve the surrounding counties of Brevard, Lake, Seminole and Flagler."

The 9,300-square-foot facility will house more than 15 professionally designed interactive exhibits that demonstrate various principles of science, engineering and physics.
