WORTH AVE

Trendy and chic, The Palm Beaches and Boca Raton are the perfect setting for world-class shopping. Internationally known as a hot spot for avant-garde designers, the area is a runway for today's top fashions.

One of the most notable shopping districts is Worth Avenue, commonly referred to as "The Rodeo Drive of the East Coast." Providing an unforgettable shopping experience amid Old World decor, Worth Avenue is home to such prestigious retailers as Emanuel Ungaro, Neiman Marcus, Saks Fifth Avenue, Jimmy Choo, Gucci, Salvatore Ferragamo, Tiffany & Co., Van Cleef & Arpels and Chanel, to name just a few.

Legendary for its quality merchandise, extraordinary integrity and oceanside setting, Worth Avenue is currently undergoing an eight-month, $14 million-plus renovation and facelift to preserve and enhance its opulent status. Scheduled for completion the end of November 2010, the project will boast spectacular landscaping and pedestrian parks, wider sidewalks with a unique 'shell tabby' finish, and underground utilities for a clear view of the streetscape. The design will create a new shopping experience with pedestrian ease of access in mind. A new clock tower will also adorn the entrance to the Avenue at South Ocean Boulevard, establishing a higher profile identity to the beginning of the fashionable shopping district.

Home to more than 200 shops, offering everything from haute couture designer clothing, shoes and jewelry to internationally acclaimed paintings, and antiques, restaurants, hotels, boutiques, upscale businesses and services, the Worth Avenue experience has been treasured for over half a century by visitors around the world. The rich history of the Avenue began in 1918 when Addison Mizner brought his unique sense of architecture to the Island, building the elegant Everglades Club at the west end of the street, which set the pace for the prestige that this strip of real estate would one day command.

For more than a century, Worth Avenue has attracted royalty, celebrities, politicians, personalities, captains of industry and anyone captivated by charm and elegance. Today, visitors to Worth Avenue can experience stories from the past through the popular "Historical Walking Tours of Wonderful Worth Avenue." Conducted on select Wednesdays throughout the season and Saturdays throughout the summer, these popular strolls are guided by James Ponce, proclaimed Palm Beach's only "Two Legged Historical Landmark" by the Palm Beach Town Council in 1996. Complete with top hat, pocket watch and walking cane, Ponce assumes the persona of Flagler during the tours as he shares the history of Worth Avenue and environs. Drawing from his own memories, including boyhood recollections of his father's association with Henry Flagler himself, Jim Ponce recounts the facts and fables of Palm Beach's illustrious history.

A leisurely walk on the Avenue is not complete until you explore the many tropical vias and courtyards designed by Addison Mizner. There are few things better in life than a day spent strolling Worth Avenue under the azure South Florida sky, the bougainvillea blooming and a slight breeze off the ocean ruffling your shopping bags. When you top all this off with an excellent lunch at one of the Avenue's fine restaurants, the day is complete. Palm Beach is, after all, an international destination for the good life, the old school, the epitome of impeccable service and quality.
